

“In fact, it is to the inventive genius that the highest results of civilization are due, and especially that crowning glory of social achievement, the more equal distribution of wealth.”

– Leland Stanford